Charlotte Knox, of Knox Education, is an educational consultant with long-term success and experience in helping students, teachers, administrators, and districts improve literacy and academic performance and narrow the achievement gap. In 2011 she built a comprehensive website which now houses all of the tools and curricula she has developed over the past twenty years. Her major focus during the time of transition to the Common Core has been on effective teaching of the three writing types, as well as the design of student and teacher friendly Common Core standards based tools for teaching and planning.
